Overview

A large vocabulary with several kinds of evidence

Red, royal blue, rose, raw sienna, and ruby sound familiar, but familiar names do not always identify a single color. A software keyword can define an exact sRGB triplet. A paint name belongs to a maker, product code, market, and catalog. A historical name can describe a broad region of color, while a mineral or pigment name refers to a material. This page keeps those meanings distinct so readers can find a useful value without mistaking it for a universal standard.

What this edition contains

The digital directory contains 1,671 source-specific records from 18 source, system, or version groups. There are 1,662 distinct RGB triplets. Every admitted patch has been reviewed within twelve GKBook shade families. A separate historical directory contains 305 headwords with 381 source assignments from NBS SP 440. Eighty-one rows with contradictory numerical fields are held outside the atlas. These are counts within the consulted sources, not a census of every R color in existence. [1–18, 22, 34]

The RAL indexing exception

Of the digital records, 267 come from RAL: 216 CLASSIC identities and 51 R-initial DESIGN SYSTEM plus names. Only 61 of those official English names begin with R. The other 206 CLASSIC entries are deliberately indexed as “RAL”, followed by the code and official name, to resolve the large RAL block in the earlier GKBook list. Their original names and the prefix flag remain in the data. They should not be counted as 206 additional natural-language R color names. [14, 33]

How to read an entry

Read the name, source, code, hex, RGB, and evidence note together. The source supplies the numerical preview; GKBook supplies the reviewed family. A dealer approximation, older catalog value, supplier-hosted preview, or informal survey label keeps that qualification wherever it appears. A successful arithmetic check establishes that the two numerical notations agree. It does not establish physical accuracy, licensing, product availability, or equivalence to another maker’s similarly named color.

Royal blue shows why the source matters

One name, several numerical contexts

The CSS keyword royalblue is #4169E1, RGB (65, 105, 225). Jotun ROYAL BLUE 4224 has the consulted preview #23507B, while the xkcd label royal blue is #0504AA. These are three different source contexts. The Pantone TCX dealer table adds Royal Blue 19-3955 TCX at #3D428B, with a dealer qualification. None is a universal replacement for all the others. [12, 13, 15, 17]

A practical way to choose

For a web style sheet that calls for the named keyword, use royalblue exactly as CSS defines it. For a physical coating, begin with the maker and product code, then inspect an appropriate sample in the intended lighting and finish. For a data visualization that uses a published naming dataset, identify that dataset. Recording the reason for the choice is more useful than declaring one source the “true” royal blue.

Preserve context when revising a page

A source can change a web preview without proving that a physical formula changed. This edition logs 114 code-matched differences between older and retained Sherwin-Williams tables, and keeps 21 older-only R contexts explicitly historical. When a comparison produces a different value, retain the older claim and its provenance in the audit trail. Do not quietly blend values, average them, or relabel a historical table as current. [3, 34]

Red in CSS, X11, catalogs, and surveys

Four exact R keywords

The consulted CSS Color 4 table defines rebeccapurple #663399, red #FF0000, rosybrown #BC8F8F, and royalblue #4169E1. Their RGB forms are (102, 51, 153), (255, 0, 0), (188, 143, 143), and (65, 105, 225), respectively. These single-word tokens are software definitions. Display names with spaces can be useful in an article, but “rebecca purple” and “rosy brown” are not those CSS keyword spellings. [17]

Names do not establish compatibility

X.Org rgb 1.1.1 has its own named table, including numbered entries such as red2, red3, and red4. This edition combines three explicit case or spacing alternatives while preserving their aliases. A name accepted by an X11 application is not automatically a CSS keyword. Conversely, the fact that CSS and X11 share a value does not erase their separate documentary contexts. [18]

A catalog red is a product identity

Benjamin Moore Red 2000-10 is represented here by #C92E2E. The consulted Crayola web field for Red is #ED0A3F. The xkcd survey’s red is #E50000. Those values can be faithfully reported without treating them as corrections to CSS red. The earlier list’s five numbered “Red” labels lack enough source context to authenticate all five. Its #FF0000 row has a documented CSS/X11 match; the other legacy numbers retain their stated verification limits. [2, 13, 16–18, 33]

Reading hexadecimal and RGB

A worked example: rebeccapurple

A six-digit hex code contains three pairs in red, green, blue order. For #663399, the pairs are 66, 33, and 99. In base sixteen, 66 equals 6 × 16 + 6 = 102; 33 equals 3 × 16 + 3 = 51; 99 equals 9 × 16 + 9 = 153. Therefore #663399 and RGB (102, 51, 153) are exactly equivalent notations. This calculation verifies the digits; it does not authenticate an unattributed name. [17]

Encoded channels are not paint proportions

The channel values in this edition are eight-bit screen previews interpreted as sRGB for illustration and calculations. They are not percentages of red, green, and blue paint, nor are they linear measurements of emitted light. The sRGB transfer function matters when calculating luminance or mixing light mathematically. The same digits interpreted in a different RGB color space can represent a different color. [19, 20]

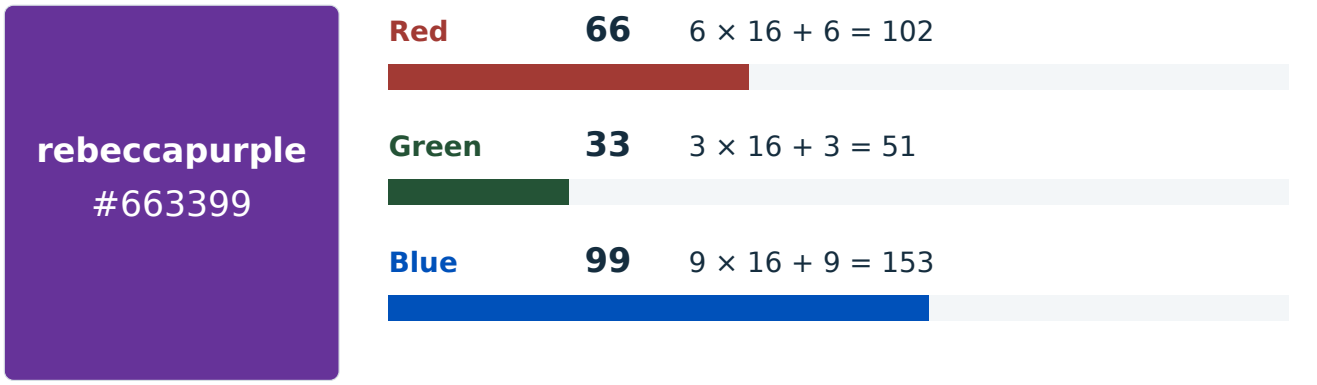

What a swatch cannot show

A flat screen patch cannot reproduce a metallic surface, pearlescent effect, fluorescence, transparency, texture, or changing gloss. Names such as RAL Pearl ruby red and RAL Luminous red still identify physical standards with properties beyond a single display triplet. Borders make pale swatches visible on the page; they are a layout aid and do not alter the recorded color. [14]

How the shade families were reviewed

Read the patch and preserve the name

Every distinct admitted RGB patch was inspected on a neutral surround. The provisional labels were then reviewed together within the twelve final families. This changed 409 record labels. Identical triplets receive the same family, even when different sources use different names. Family boundaries are editorial navigation choices; they are not measured tolerances or a replacement for a formal color-appearance model.

Three Racing Green contexts

RAL Racing green RAL 120 30 05 is #42443D and is placed in Gray here. Resene Racing Green G30-012-182 is #232F2C and is placed in Black. The xkcd racing green label, #014600, is placed in Green. This is not a dispute about the words. The three cited patches differ, and the directory preserves each name while giving readers a useful visual grouping. [5, 13, 14]

Borderlines remain judgments

Muted reds can approach Brown, pale roses can approach White, and blue-leaning purples can fall in Violet. In this edition, CSS rebeccapurple is grouped in Violet; its keyword remains unchanged. Raw Sienna from the consulted Crayola web field is grouped in Orange, while other source-specific Raw Sienna previews are Brown. No source number was changed to make a family assignment look more conventional. [1, 12, 16, 17]

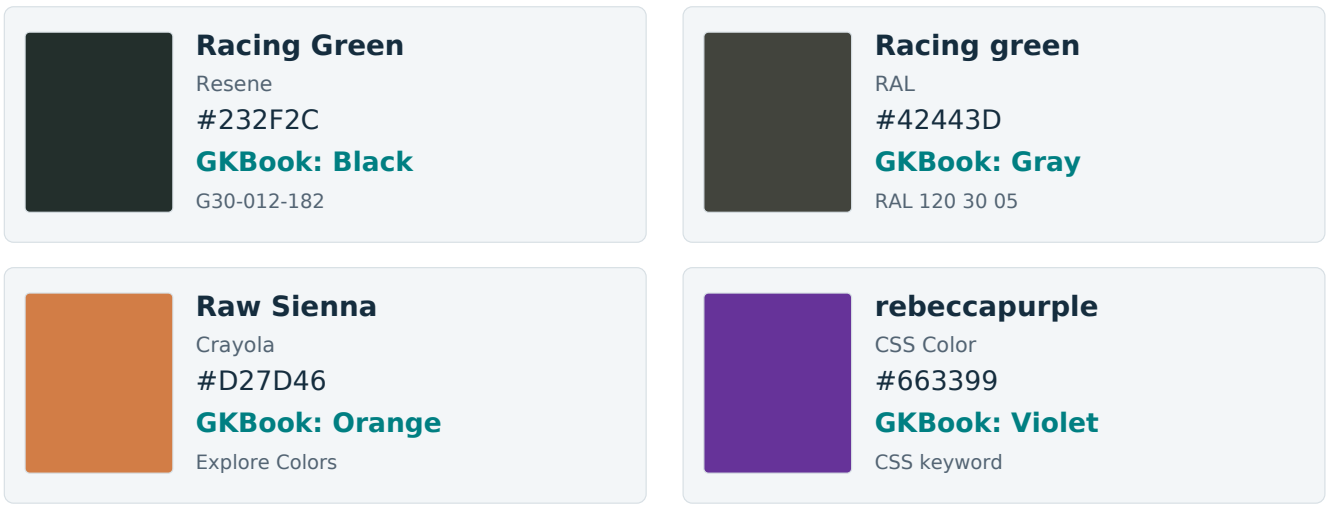

Source categories are retained separately

A manufacturer can organize a catalog for merchandising, formulation, or its own design system. That source category remains a separate field. The final GKBook family is explicitly labeled as an independent review. The full review log records both the provisional and final labels, and the atlas uses the final labels consistently.

Raw sienna, raw umber, rose madder, and rose quartz

Earth pigments

Raw sienna is an iron-oxide earth pigment. Umber is another earth-pigment context, involving iron and manganese compounds. Natural composition, preparation, binder, application thickness, and the surface all affect appearance. A paint maker may also use these familiar words for a formulated color. The material description does not itself authenticate any of the several legacy hex values attached to Raw Sienna or Raw Umber. [23, 24, 33]

Rose madder

CAMEO treats rose madder as a madder-lake pigment name. The historical dictionary records additional naming contexts under that phrase. Neither kind of evidence supplies a single universal sRGB triplet. The older #E32636 claim is therefore kept numerically unverified; its patch is visually Red in this review, correcting the older Pink family without pretending that this classification validates the number. [22, 25, 33]

Rose quartz and named products

Rose quartz is a pink variety of quartz whose appearance varies among specimens. A named paint can use the same phrase without becoming a mineral specification. Benjamin Moore Rose Quartz 2002-30 has the admitted preview #E65458 and is grouped in Red here. The Pantone dealer’s Rose Quartz 13-1520 TCX is #F7CAC9, grouped in Pink and qualified as an approximation. The historical Rose Quartz headword belongs to another descriptive context. [2, 12, 22, 26]

Historical R names and Radiant Orchid

A dictionary of documentary meanings

NBS Special Publication 440 brings together earlier color vocabularies and assigns their names to ISCC–NBS descriptive categories. The 305 headwords in this edition come from the main R block on printed pages 137–143. Repeated names can have separate assignments under different source keys. Those distinctions matter: the entry is evidence of how a particular earlier source used a name, not proof of one timeless meaning. [22]

Source keys are part of the evidence

M identifies Maerz and Paul, P identifies Plochere, and R identifies Ridgway; other keys identify textile, horticultural, federal-paint, postal, plastic, biological, and soil vocabularies. Plate or product designations remain attached where printed. For example, the historical Red entry includes distinct textile, plastic, postal, and soil assignments. Its wide descriptive range is not the CSS definition of red. [22]

Categories are regions, not RGB points

A historical assignment such as moderate blue or grayish purplish red describes a category region. This page expands the category numbers into readable names but does not invent an RGB centroid. Historical entries therefore have no admitted atlas patches. Cross-reference-only inversions such as “Red, [modifier]” and modifier-first forms are outside the 305-headword count. Explicit same-as pointers under admitted headwords remain visible. [22]

Radiant Orchid before and after 2014

The historical Radiant Orchid entry is a Plochere context assigned to ISCC–NBS category 226. Pantone later selected Radiant Orchid 18-3224 as its 2014 Color of the Year. The shared words do not make those identities equivalent. The official Pantone evidence checked here establishes the name, code, and year; the numerical TCX record in this edition remains tied to the separately consulted dealer table. The legacy #B565A7 claim is not promoted to an owner-verified specification. [12, 22, 27, 28]

RAL codes, digital previews, and rich black

A RAL name needs its code and system

The earlier list contains 193 RAL-prefixed rows without the numeric identifiers needed for reliable matching. Each has now been linked to an official named identity. For example, Blue lilac is RAL 4005; the consulted preview is #746395. The old #933D50 patch is visibly red-leaning and is not authenticated by that identity match. Brown beige is RAL 1011, with the consulted preview #A38454; the older #A98307 is another unverified conversion. A resolved name does not prove the provenance of an old RGB conversion. [14, 33]

The prefix policy is explicit

All 216 consulted CLASSIC identities are included to make the legacy RAL reconciliation useful and coherent. When the official English name does not begin with R, the displayed index label adds RAL and the code. The JSON preserves the unmodified official name, source system, and prefix_index_entry flag. The 51 additional DESIGN SYSTEM plus entries were selected by their R-initial English names. Readers can filter the data to the 61 naturally R-initial RAL names if that is the intended scope. [14]

Physical standards and source rights

The official website’s CSS previews are documented as approximations. They do not replace a physical RAL reference, and the present document is not a licensed RAL digital color library. RAL’s site states that use of numerical color values requires an agreement. A factual citation or an original swatch layout does not grant rights in a proprietary color library. Resolve the appropriate usage terms before public or commercial reuse of those values. [14]

Rich black is a printing specification problem

The supplied list labels #010B13 “Rich Black Fogra29” and #010203 “Rich Black Fogra39”. The consulted Fogra source describes characterization data for printing conditions; it does not establish those as universal rich-black screen colors. A practical print instruction needs a specified process, substrate, profile, and ink recipe. An isolated hex triplet cannot carry that information. The three Rich Black legacy values remain unverified numerical claims, even though their screen families can still be reviewed. [29, 33]

Readable text on an R color

Red is a useful contrast example

For opaque sRGB red #FF0000, WCAG relative luminance is 0.2126. Black text has a contrast ratio of 5.252:1, displayed as 5.25:1; white text has about 3.998:1, displayed as 4.00:1. Black therefore meets the 4.5:1 AA contrast threshold for normal text. White falls below that threshold, although it exceeds the 3:1 threshold for large text. A vivid background does not tell you which foreground is readable. [17, 20, 21]

Calculate the actual pair

Relative luminance is calculated after the sRGB channels are linearized, using the weighted sum 0.2126R + 0.7152G + 0.0722B. The contrast ratio is the lighter luminance plus 0.05 divided by the darker luminance plus 0.05. The data files give both black and white contrast values for every admitted preview and suggest the higher-contrast one. Compare the unrounded calculation to a threshold. [20, 21]

A patch is only part of an interface

The example concerns opaque foreground and background colors. Transparency, images, gradients, hover states, text size, and surrounding content require their own checks. Large text has a specific definition in the WCAG guidance. Meeting one contrast threshold does not certify an entire page, and color should not be the only signal that communicates a status or distinction. [21]

What verification resolved and what remains open

Conflicting fields are held

Eighty Pantone TPG dealer rows and Resene Rolling Fog contain contradictory numerical fields. Rolling Fog N89-006-291 publishes hex #DAD5DF with RGB (218, 215, 223), whose exact hexadecimal equivalent is #DAD7DF. The calculation identifies the inconsistency; it does not identify which field the source intended. Neither candidate becomes an admitted patch. Each held row retains both published fields, its source URL, and the diagnostic conversion. [5, 12]

Missing fields are a different problem

The consulted Resene Red Terracotta page provides a dash for hex and (0, 0, 0) as a placeholder. That is not sufficient evidence for a black color. It belongs in the missing-specification register, separate from genuine numeric conflicts. Across the discovered product pages, 97 endpoint gaps remain: 35 Nerolac, 24 Dulux Australia, 17 Little Greene, 10 Farrow & Ball, 8 Sherwin-Williams, 2 Resene, and 1 PPG. A discovered name or failed request does not justify sampling a screenshot or inventing a numerical value. [5–11, 35]

Catalog coverage is not a page check

The general Sherwin-Williams table supports 128 admitted records even though their individual-page retrievals failed. These are explicitly catalog-verified. Jotun’s regional pagination returned 989 rows but only 972 unique identities because some pages overlapped; 45 R identities were retained from that bounded inventory. PPG’s 22-page browse-all traversal yielded 75 numerically checked R pages. These limitations remain in the research files rather than being hidden behind a claim of global completeness. [3, 6, 15]

Every older row has a resolution

All 332 supplied legacy rows are accounted for. Forty-nine have an exact source-specific match and one has an exact qualified dealer match. The 193 RAL identities are resolved while their legacy conversions remain unverified. Forty-four other rows have a same-name context but no exact numerical match, and 45 have no exact named numerical match in the consulted sources. Forty-six original patch families change after visual review. Unsupported legacy numbers stay out of the atlas; their original text and proposed handling remain in the reconciliation appendix. [33]

Source coverage and family guide

Source groups identify distinct evidence contexts. They are not a count of unrelated manufacturers. TCX/TPG dealer previews, the two Sherwin-Williams table contexts, and the CSS/X11 definitions are deliberately distinguishable. Counts below are after documented alias consolidation.

Alphabetical digital directory

Family is GKBook’s visual judgment. Each hex/RGB pair is exactly equivalent. The evidence note preserves source categories, archive flags, LRVs, aliases, and limitations. No product code is invented when the consulted page omits it. Proper source spellings and regional names remain intact. The initial-letter rule has an explicit exception for 206 non-R RAL CLASSIC names indexed with the RAL prefix; original names and flags are in the data.

Aliases and source versions

Three X.Org case/spacing alias rows are consolidated into their equivalent identities. Alias spellings remain in the data and directory notes. Different source contexts remain separate even when values coincide. Duplicate discovery URLs do not create additional identities.

The source-version file preserves 114 code-matched differences between the older Sherwin-Williams table and retained previews. 21 older-table contexts remain qualified as historical. Preview differences do not establish physical reformulation. [3, 34]

Historical R-color names

The 305 directly assigned R headwords below come from the main R block on printed pages 137–143 (PDF pages 173–179) of NBS SP 440. The 381 source assignments remain distinct. Inverted cross-references and modifier-first forms are not counted again. Source-specific spellings, plate codes and same-as pointers are retained. No historical RGB value is invented. [22]

The unresolved JSON includes each exact source URL and reason. Dealer qualifiers remain necessary even for admitted internally consistent rows. This register concerns contradictory published numerical fields, separate from missing-page or name-only evidence. [5, 12]

Name-only evidence and scope gaps

Name / source	Evidence boundary
Raw sienna / MFA Boston / CAMEO	Iron-oxide earth pigment; a material name does not impose a universal screen value.
Raw umber / MFA Boston / CAMEO	Brown earth pigment context; composition and appearance cannot be reduced to one generic RGB triplet.
Rose madder / MFA Boston / CAMEO	Historical pigment name, distinct from any manufacturer color bearing the same words.
Rose quartz / GIA	Natural pink quartz varies between specimens; digital product names have separate identities.
Radiant Orchid / Pantone	Official name/code/year verified. The dealer TCX preview remains separately qualified; the legacy #B565A7 is not authenticated by the consulted owner evidence.
Rich black / FOGRA29 / FOGRA39 / Fogra	Characterization datasets do not define universal rich-black hex values. A usable print specification needs an explicit process, profile and ink recipe.

These material and named-system contexts do not establish a universal hex. The separate endpoint-gap register records 97 unresolved discovered pages. Catalog verification resolves 128 failed Sherwin-Williams individual-page requests without pretending those pages were checked. Jotun has 972 unique regional identities from 989 advertised rows because pagination overlaps. Source dates and reuse are preserved. [3, 5–11, 15, 23–29, 35]

Reconciliation of the earlier R list

All 332 rows from the supplied r-colors.txt are accounted for below. Forty-nine have exact source-specific matches and one an exact qualified dealer match. All 193 RAL identities are resolved, while their old conversions remain unverified. Forty-four other rows have a same-name context without numerical agreement and 45 have no exact named numerical match in the consulted sources. All original patches were visually reviewed; 46 legacy families change. The visual judgment does not authenticate an unsupported number. [33]

Legacy entry / value	Evidence outcome	Resolution / matched IDs
RL327 / Rust Brown / #8B3103 / brown	Exact source-specific match	Retain #8B3103 only in the documented context: rust brown / xkcd survey. Matching a source does not establish the original writer's unstated intent. Keep the survey-label qualifier and source spelling. Historical naming evidence: RH300; descriptive NBS categories do not authenticate this hex. Original patch family: Brown (retained). Matched IDs: R1621
RL328 / Rust Orange / #C45508 / orange	Exact source-specific match	Retain #C45508 only in the documented context: rust orange / xkcd survey. Matching a source does not establish the original writer's unstated intent. Keep the survey-label qualifier and source spelling. Original patch family: Orange (retained). Matched IDs: R1651
RL329 / Rust Red / #AA2704 / red	Exact source-specific match	Retain #AA2704 only in the documented context: rust red / xkcd survey. Matching a source does not establish the original writer's unstated intent. Keep the survey-label qualifier and source spelling. Original patch family: Red (retained). Matched IDs: R1652
RL330 / Rusty Orange / #CD5909 / orange	Exact source-specific match	Retain #CD5909 only in the documented context: rusty orange / xkcd survey. Matching a source does not establish the original writer's unstated intent. Keep the survey-label qualifier and source spelling. Original patch family: Orange (retained). Matched IDs: R1658
RL331 / Rusty Red / #DA2C43 / red	Name found; legacy numerical claim unverified	Keep #DA2C43 unverified. The same name has distinct documented contexts, including RAL RAL 010 20 25 #48202B (R1659); xkcd survey #AF2F0D (R1660). A different maker, version, or value is not an automatic correction. Exclude this unsupported legacy number from the admitted atlas. Original patch family: Red (retained).
RL332 / Rusty Red 1 / #AF2F0D / red	Exact source-specific match	Retain #AF2F0D only in the documented context: rusty red / xkcd survey. Matching a source does not establish the original writer's unstated intent. Keep the survey-label qualifier and source spelling. Original patch family: Red (retained). Matched IDs: R1660

Glossary

Term	Meaning
Source-specific record	A name and numerical value tied to an issuer, code, system, market, version, or other stated context.
sRGB	The RGB encoding used to interpret this edition’s eight-bit screen previews and calculations.
Hex / RGB	Equivalent hexadecimal and decimal notations for three encoded channel values.
Shade family	An independently reviewed GKBook grouping for navigation; it does not replace the original name.
Source category	The maker’s own classification, preserved separately from GKBook’s family.
LRV	Light reflectance value as supplied by a source. It is not automatically the same as luminance calculated from a web preview.
Relative luminance	The WCAG calculation of relative brightness from linearized sRGB channels.
Contrast ratio	A numerical comparison of a specific foreground and background luminance.
TCX / TPG	Distinct Pantone Fashion, Home + Interiors product contexts. The admitted values here come from a dealer table.
ISCC–NBS category	A descriptive color region indexed by a number, not a unique RGB triplet.
Catalog verification	Numerical evidence checked in a primary catalog; no successful individual-page check is implied.
Held record	A source row with conflicting numerical fields, retained for resolution and excluded from the atlas.
Coverage gap	A discovered endpoint for which sufficient usable numerical evidence was not established.
System-index entry	A label prefixed with RAL and a code to make a non-R official CLASSIC name findable under the RAL block.

Frequently asked questions

How many colors start with R?

This edition has 1,671 digital records within its stated source scope, including 206 deliberately prefixed RAL CLASSIC index entries. It also documents 305 historical headwords separately. These counts are not a universal total, and different source records can share a name or RGB value.

Is red always #FF0000?

That is the CSS definition of red. A manufacturer’s Red, a survey label, a pigment, or a historical descriptive name can identify a different context. Keep the source and code with the number. [2, 13, 16–18, 22]

Why is rebeccapurple in Violet?

The CSS keyword and value remain exactly as defined. Violet is this edition’s visual family for its blue-leaning purple patch. The family is an editorial classification, not a modification of CSS. [17]

Which royal blue should I use?

Use the value belonging to the required system. CSS royalblue is #4169E1; a paint or other product requires its own maker and code. A shared name is insufficient to substitute one source for another. [12–15, 17]

Does Rose Quartz have one official hex?

The mineral does not impose one universal screen value. The product contexts in this directory are separately identified, and the Pantone-related numerical entry remains a dealer approximation. [2, 12, 26]

Why not fix a conflicting source by converting its RGB?

Conversion proves what that RGB means numerically. It does not prove that the RGB field is correct and the hex field is wrong. A source clarification or independently authoritative specification is needed before selecting a correction.

Can I send a screen swatch to a paint or print supplier?

Use it as a visual reference together with the exact system, maker, code, and production requirements. A physical match or print workflow needs information beyond a flat RGB preview. RAL usage terms and physical references remain separate requirements. [14, 29]

Can this page be searched offline?

Yes. The self-contained HTML has a name/source/code search and a shade-family filter. The CSV and JSON preserve numerical values and provenance for further work. The PDF directory and companion atlas share stable record IDs.
